What is this Disclosure Statement for?

This Disclosure Statement provides information about:

- the types of financial adviser services I provide;
- the fees that you may be charged in relation to the financial adviser services I provide;
- the remuneration and other financial benefits that Jarden Securities Limited (Jarden) or I may receive from third parties in relation to those financial adviser services; and
- other financial interests, relationships or associations that are relevant.

What professional and business experience do I have?

I have obtained a Bachelor of Business Studies in Management. I have been employed by Jarden since 2017 and have been working in the financial services industry since 2009. I am an Authorised Financial Adviser and an accredited NZX Adviser.

What financial adviser services do I provide?

I only provide financial advice on financial products that Jarden has researched, or on which adequate research has been received from a reputable financial service provider. I can provide financial advice which takes account of your personal situation and goals, and I can help you decide whether a financial product is suitable for you. I can also provide advice about investments that are usually suitable for a group or 'class' of people and you can use this information to form your own opinions.

Jarden is licensed to provide a Discretionary Investment Management Service and I can provide advice on this service on its behalf. I do not advise clients on insurance or tax and I recommend that you seek advice on these matters from a specialist provider.

What fees will you be charged for the financial adviser services I provide to you?

As an employee of Jarden, I do not charge you any fees personally. Jarden will charge fees for the administration of your portfolios, and safekeeping assets held in custody for you. All fees are exclusive of GST, if any.

Portfolio Reporting/Monitoring Fees

Where portfolio reporting and/or monitoring is also required as a service, additional fees will be based on a percentage of the value of assets under administration (which may or may not include cash and short term money market deposits). These additional fees will accrue daily and be charged every quarter in arrears. The percentage charge will vary depending on the value of the assets being administered. Portfolio reporting and/or monitoring fees will typically be up to 1% per annum, for example, 1% charged on assets of $1,000,000 (including cash) will be $10,000 per annum. Fees will be agreed with you before you require a service and will be applied in accordance with the terms of your Jarden client agreement. You will receive written notification if these fees change at any time.

What other fees may Jarden charge?

Jarden will charge you brokerage or commission (and, where applicable, pass on agency, settlement and other fees) on secondary market transactions that we arrange on your behalf. Brokerage on secondary market transactions will typically be up to a maximum of 1.5% of the transaction value and will be detailed on each contract note sent to you. Minimum brokerage fees, being typically “50” as an amount in the relevant trading exchange currency (e.g., NZD50, AUD50, GBP50, USD50) will also apply. Brokerage fees will be charged at the rate agreed with you before the transaction is initiated, and paid at the time the transactions is settled.

What fees may third parties charge?

Product fees

Fees will vary by product provider. Any fees payable by you to third party provider will be disclosed to you before you make an investment. This information will be provided in the form of an information memorandum or other similar document issued or provided by the relevant fund manager or product provider.

Transaction fees

Transaction fees vary depending on transaction size and the market on which the transaction is undertaken. Where additional charges, such as agency execution fees, settlement fees, exchange and clearing house fees, trade fees, and stamp duty charges apply to transactions, Jarden will recover those charges from you at the time of settlement of the transaction.

Does Jarden (or I) receive remuneration from third parties in relation to the financial adviser services that I provide?

In the course of transactions arranged by me, Jarden may receive or earn:

- trading profit where it has acted as principal for its own account as the counterparty to the trade;
- fees and brokerage, including brokerage and trail commission from third parties;
- margin on fixed interest transactions;
- margin on cash management call account and/or term deposit balances;
- margin on exchange rates in respect of transactions involving foreign exchange; and
- in respect of new issues of securities, brokerage and firm allocation fees from issuers of securities.

Fees, brokerage and trail commission paid to Jarden by third parties will vary by product type and provider. The fees, brokerage and trail commissions will be set out in the product offer document.

Role in issues of securities

In addition to the remuneration set out above, Jarden may receive fees for acting as organising broker, arranger or manager of an issue of securities and receive underwriting, discretionary incentive or performance fees from the Issuer.

My Remuneration

I receive remuneration consisting of a fixed base salary, discretionary attribution bonus and potentially an additional discretionary bonus. The discretionary attribution bonus is based on my individual performance and the fee structure and level of service agreed between Jarden and my respective clients. For the purposes of the fixed base salary and discretionary attribution bonus, I can receive total remuneration of up to 48% of the revenue I generate. The additional discretionary bonus may be awarded and is derived from a dedicated pool of revenue and accordingly not based on any performance calculation.

What other interests, relationships and associations should you know about?

In the provision of my services, I rely on the research produced by Jarden's research team and Credit Suisse Group with whom Jarden has a strategic alliance.

Managing conflicts of interest

I am required to comply with comprehensive compliance arrangements implemented by Jarden, including policies and procedures that govern conflicts management and professional conduct. Where arrangements exist to manage conflicts arising from the receipt, or possible receipt, of remuneration by Jarden or me, these will be disclosed to you in a written statement.

What kind of Professional Indemnity Insurance do I have?

Jarden maintains professional indemnity insurance cover at a level that is appropriate for the nature and risks of its business. Indemnity and Crime insurance are provided by leading international insurers and are renewed annually. The cover extends to all business activities including those I undertake in my capacity as Adviser. As with all insurance, these covers have limitations and are subject to certain exclusions.
